Dozens caught in drug sweep

Undercover operation launched following residents' complaints

By VICTORIA HANDYSIDES
Metro Edmonton

West-end drug users are going to have lot more trouble scoring their poison, after police cracked down on a "dial-a-dope" operation that has landed a small army of dealers in jail.

Project Wagia was an undercover operation that put West Division officers in the role of druggies, buying small quantities of cocaine from dealers who often delivered within minutes after being called.

"It was a fairly labour-intensive effort for us, but it was done in response to complaints from the community, largely south of Stony Plain Road," said Edmonton Police Services Supt. Joe Marshall at West Division headquarters yesterday.

Police Supt. Joe Marshall

"Those are quieter, residential neighbourhoods that were inundated with people delivering drugs there.

When you're exposed to that for many months on end, it becomes apparent what's going on there."

The project has been underway since February, and police have laid a total of 127 charges against 34 men and women between the ages of 16 and 34.

"The fact that we were able to arrest so many people and garner so many charges proves that we were successful, and we hope it's going to reduce the negative impact on these communities."

Marshall added that the bust won't stop drug trafficking in the area, but that it will slow it significantly.

"It's going to make a lot of the traffickers nervous and we hope that some of the 34 individuals are going to stay in custody for some time to come."

Alzheimer's sufferer found

By VICTORIA HANDYSIDES

Family members of an 81-year-old man who went missing over the weekend breathed a sigh of relief yesterday, after he was found alive and fairly well.

Roy Berg, who has Alzheimer's disease, was last seen Saturday night, when he went for a walk from his daughter's rural Strathcona County home.

Rescue crews searched all weekend, and feared he had fallen into a lake or pond. RCMP divers were about to take the search under water, when Berg was found at the Ministik Bird Sanctuary on Monday, about five kilometres south of his daughter's home.

Berg was lying beside a building, conscious, with minor injuries and was taken to hospital via STARS Air Ambulance.

Dentist's patients warned of danger

1,400 may have been exposed to hepatitis B

By JEFF CUMMINGS
Metro Edmonton

Health officials are busy tracking down 1,400 patients who have been potentially exposed to hepatitis B after an Edmonton dentist was diagnosed with the disease in February.

Those who have been patients of Dr. Byron Wong, who practised in Edmonton's south side since 2001, are at "very low risk of getting the disease," cautioned Dr. Garry Predy, Capital Health's medical health officer.

In fact, catching the disease is somewhere "between one in 10,000 to one in 100,000," said Predy yesterday.

"This is a unique situation, but we are concerned about those patients," said Predy.

"It's not a public health emergency."

Nurses have already begun calling patients to let them know about what they could have been exposed to, said Predy, along with offering voluntary testing.

Reaching all of Wong's patients could take two to three months, Predy said.

In some cases, the disease can cause liver scarring or failure and it can be spread through bodily fluids.

The 37-year-old dentist, who voluntarily closed his office at 11044 51 Ave. in February when he was diagnosed with the disease, won't be returning to dentistry until a review panel determines it's safe for his patients, said Dr. Jonathan Skuba, president with the Alberta Dental Association.

"Dr. Wong has been very co-operative and has acted in a professional manner," said Skuba.

"He has agreed to let his name be used because he wants to ensure that his current and former patients are aware of the situation so they can be tested as a precaution."

Health officials said they didn't make the incident public until yesterday because of delays in compiling the list of patients, along with the number of reviews and hearings that were looking into the case.

La Dolce Vita Café was packed like a can of noisy sardines by noon yesterday as residents of Little Italy waited to see if their team would squeak into the next round of the Euro 2008 Soccer Tournament.

But as soon as the ball started rolling, the entire café was silent except for the voice of the announcer.

Edmonton can have its Oilers. Here, soccer is king.

"I've always been a fan of soccer," said Cesare Chalupa, a young fan of calcio, which is Italian for soccer. "I'm very proud of my heritage."

With Italy facing elimination on two fronts, the stakes were high. TVs showed both the Italy-France and the Netherlands-Romania games.

"If Italy qualifies, we're raising our prices next game!" the bartender jokingly yelled.

Both Italy and Netherlands won 2-0. Italy plays the quarter-final June 22. Their opponents will be determined today as Greece challenges Spain and Russia battles Sweden, both starting at 12:45 p.m. local time.

Albertans ready for their licence plates to change

More than 33,000 responded in consultation

By JEFF CUMMINGS
Metro Edmonton

Alberta drivers can expect to see new and colourful licence plates by next spring and that could include scrapping the slogan "Wild Rose Country."

But don't expect to see the new plates on the front of vehicles anytime soon, says the provincial government, despite public pressures from law enforcement officials and safety groups.

Of more than 33,000 Albertans who responded to a three-month consultation, most preferred "Strong and Free," the province's official motto in the plate over Wild Rose Country.

The majority of Albertans in the consultation are also not too keen about the idea of reintroducing plates on the front of vehicles — something Service Alberta Minister Heather Klimchuk has confirmed the province won't be bringing back.

In a public opinion poll, however, more people were keen on keeping Wild Rose Country in the plate.

"There is no clear direction on what the slogan should be,"

said Klimchuk.

"This is something we will have to determine"

The majority also want to see the current, plain plate replaced with a reflective one that is full of colour with possibly mountains in the background.

The province received a hundreds of handmade designs.

Robert Marsh, a Calgarian who submitted a blue plate with yellow lettering that resembles Alberta's flag, says a new plate is overdue.

"Alberta's plate was cutting edge when it came out 25 years ago, but it's not cutting edge anymore," said Marsh.

Ignition interlocks for drunk drivers

By JEFF CUMMINGS
Metro Edmonton

Alberta's worst drunk drivers must start their cars and trucks by blowing into a beeping alcohol sensor beginning next month, the provincial government announced yesterday.

And along with paying thousands of dollars in penalties, drunk drivers must also put up cash towards installing the high-tech devices, along with application fees and a $105 monthly rent.

"If people choose to be idiots, they (the drivers) should pay for it, not the taxpayers," Alberta Transportation Min-

other provinces

» Ontario made the high-tech devices mandatory in every vehicle owned by a drunk driver six years ago and other provinces have formed similar programs.

ister Luke Ouellette said yesterday.

Staff Sgt. Barry Maron with the Edmonton Police Traffic Section says he doesn't expect to see a decline in impaired driving offences, but it's a step in the right direction.

"People will still continue to drink and drive," said Maron.

"This is just one more message to the public that this is not acceptable and we are taking some action."

Drivers who have been repeat offenders in the last 10 years and those who have refused to provide a breath sample are also required to have the devices.

Each driver is required to use the devices for six months before a review determines if the machines should be removed.

Each convicted driver must also bring their vehicles in for an inspection every 60 days as an installer checks how many times the machine has failed the vehicle owner from driving.

The new rules come into effect July 1.

"I've come every year since I was little," Martin said yesterday afternoon from the Capital Ex media blitz. "We'd come from the farm about two hours away, which is always a major trip. I just loved it, and now to be the parade marshal, I'm really looking forward to it."

The festival contributes $60,000,000 annually to the local economy, and saw 772,692 visitors last year.

This year, festival organizers are proud to present an acrobatics and contortionism show, Barney the Dinosaur, extreme sports, the world's largest butterfly and 50,000 of his friends, and an explosive Mentos and Pepsi show.

And what trip to Capital Ex wouldn't be complete without the rides and midway games?

"You can call it whatever you want to call it, some do call it by the old Klondike Days name," said Laura Gadowski, Capital Ex volunteer director. "But it's really about what we offer, whether you go and shop or you ride until food won't stay in your stomach anymore."

Car insurance rate hikes floated

Increase proposed due to claim ruling

By NEIL MACKINNON
Metro Calgary

Rate hikes as high as 37 per cent were bandied about as a means to deal with rising costs after an Alberta soft tissue claims limit was struck down by the courts, according to some car insurance industry insiders.

Peace Hills Insurance vice-president Jamie Hotte said 33 per cent of his company's proposed hike at the Alberta Auto Insurance Rate Board public hearing would be necessary to lessen the impact of the law changing after the $4,000 soft tissue claim cap was struck down earlier this year, while the other 4 per cent is for inflation.

"Sticker shock, absolutely, but that's not to say there isn't a way we can prevent this from happening all at once," Hotte said. "If that cap is gone, it eventually has to affect the driving public, that's all there is to it."

If the 37 per cent hike is adopted by the board, which will make its decision in August, more than a month ahead of the province's court appeal date to reinstate the $4,000 cap, it could put Alberta's insurance rates among the highest in the country.

The new rates would come into affect in November.

Concern about fair trial

Public outcry may result in difficulties for justice system

By ROBYN YOUNG
Metro Halifax

Following massive public outcry against Penny Boudreau after her first court appearance Monday, some residents of Bridgewater, N.S., wonder if it's possible for the woman accused of killing her only child to have a fair trial.

"I think there'd be a problem seeking an impartial jury," said Barbara Wicks, who has lived in the town for more than 40 years.

Wicks said she was disappointed to hear about the angry mob that hurled insults and accusations at Boudreau after she appeared in court to face charges of first-degree murder in the death of her 12-year-old daughter Karissa.

Dalhousie University Law professor Archie Kaiser says it's the responsibility of the justice system to see that Boudreau is innocent until proven guilty.

"There are many protective mechanisms to ensure that somebody who is accused in a situation like this is able to attain a fair trial," Kaiser said yesterday.

The judge can ask to change the location of the trial, for example, he said.

Kaiser agreed it's important for the public not to jump to conclusions about the case.

"She's entitled to the presumption of innocence," he said.

Boudreau's lawyer Pat Atherton did not return phone calls yesterday, but in answer to whether or not Boudreau would receive a fair trial, Crown prosecutor Paul Scovil said: "I don't see why not."

He said the anger the case stirred up in the 8,000-person town won't necessarily be a problem.

Father of B.C. baby listed on craigslist charged with forgery

Roughly three weeks after allegedly listing his week-old baby for sale on craigslist.com, Jeremy Frederick Pete is dealing with police again.

Last Monday, Coquitlam RCMP Crime Reduction Unit (CRU) noticed a suspicious vehicle near Lougheed Highway. A man was seen moving two flat-screen televisions into a car around a motel parking lot. CRU members stopped the man's vehicle before it left and

Car bomb kills 51 in Baghdad

A powerful car bomb exploded in a crowded market area of Baghdad yesterday, killing 51 people and wounding 75, in the deadliest attack in the Iraqi capital in months.

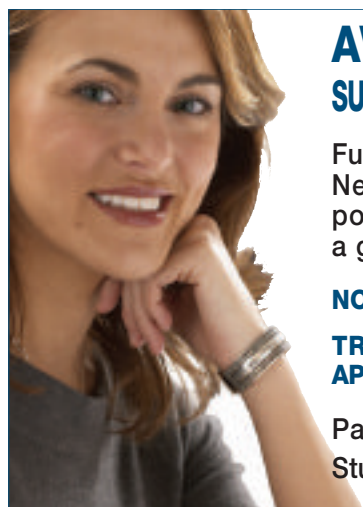

Police said the bomb was placed in a pickup truck parked next to minibus taxis near the main market in the predominantly Shiite neighbourhood of al-Hurriya in northwestern Baghdad. The explosion left a heap of smoking, mangled wreckage.

At that time of day, the market is packed with shoppers buying food. Police said 51 people were killed and 75 wounded, including women and children. The blast set fire to 20 shops and levelled a multi-storey building, a security source said.

U.S. officials blamed Sunni Arab al Qaeda militants for the huge car bombs that regularly hit Baghdad in 2006 and 2007, at the height of sectarian conflict in Iraq. REUTERS

Airline cutting jobs

Air Canada to cut flights in face of rising fuel prices

Air Canada will cut 2,000 jobs and crimp its capacity by 7 per cent as runaway fuel prices sap the profitability of many of its routes, the airline said yesterday.

Air Canada's drastic action, which translates into a 7 per cent cut in its 28,000-strong workforce, follows moves by the country's biggest airline to park older, gas-guzzling jets and to tack fuel surcharges onto fares in a bid to offset surging oil prices.

Air Canada's capacity cuts, to take effect in fall and winter schedules, will be deepest on its Canada-United States transborder network, which will shrink by 13 per cent. International capacity will drop by 7 per cent. Domestic routes will be trimmed by 2 per cent, reflecting the relative strength of the Canadian economy.

An Open Letter From Donald Trump To All Edmonton Area Residents

Who Want To Get Rich In Real Estate & Business!

Trump Tells All!

“I’ve Made Billions And Now I want To Share My Success Secrets With You!”

— Donald Trump,
Executive Producer, The Apprentice,
NBC • Chairman, Trump Institute

Dear Edmonton Area Resident,

Have you seen my TV show, The Apprentice? It's been one of the top rated shows on NBC for eight consecutive seasons!

Not only that, it has made me a media phenomenon and forever changed my life.

And now, at the age of 60, I've decided to make a bold move to share my knowledge and experience in such a way that it could be a great advantage to you.

What Kind Of Advantage?

The best kind of advantage; the kind of advantage that could make you money and make you rich.

If you are seriously interested in hearing what I have to say about being successful, about making money and about getting rich, please read every word of this letter carefully. It contains an invitation for you to discover what has taken me the better part of my life to learn and put into action.

Please let me explain.

Before The Apprentice, I was famous for building the world's largest and most beautiful buildings, golf courses and casinos, and for being a marketing whiz when it comes to succeeding in business. Everywhere I went people treated me like royalty and I was generally considered a big shot.

Everything Has Changed!

Because of The Apprentice, everything has changed. I have truly become a household word, globally. Everywhere I go people say something to me. Sometimes they say, "Trump, you're fired!" Or, "You're hired!" But always, they greet me with respect, humor and friendship. It's like they know me personally.

I love that!

With this monumental fame there comes a great responsibility (and an enormous opportunity) to make a huge contribution to the North American economy.

Something Extraordinary For You!

Since the amazing success of The Apprentice, I have been wondering what to do with this new power of worldwide fame. Recently I got the idea to do something truly extraordinary and totally outside of the box.

What I've decided is that I want to train and educate the next generation of real estate moguls and business entrepreneurs. Why?

There are two very good reasons:

Reason #1:

America's been very good to me and my family and this is a great way I can give back to the country and help stimulate real economic growth.

Reason #2:

I believe that what I have to share will create so much success for my students, that I will leave a legacy as being the father of modern real estate acquisition and entrepreneurial success.

You see, one thing you should know about me is that more than anything, I want to be known as a great businessman, maybe even the greatest!

That's why I have created Trump Institute.

Want To Know How I Do It?

Would you like to know how I buy and sell real estate? How I pick properties for huge profits and high yield equity gains?

Would you like to know what I look for when buying a business or starting a new business? If so, I'm inviting you to come to a special seminar introducing Trump Institute. At this seminar you'll see first hand the type of education I am offering.

Who Should Attend?

If you're asking yourself, "could this be the moment that changes everything for me?" All I can say is, you'll never know unless you try.

Your Success Depends On You!

Ultimately, your success depends on you, and with my help, you can get an education and an advantage that has not only proven to work for me, but it has also worked for many of the world's richest men and women.

You see, in my quest to be the best, I have sought the advice and guidance from people who have also experienced mega-billionaire success. I have incorporated their techniques and experiences into my own personal treasure chest of successful business and real estate knowledge, strategies, and wisdom.

A Powerful Team of Experts!

I also have an incredible team of business entrepreneurs and real estate mavens (very talented experts), who deliver my material and my lessons.

These are men and women who are highly successful professionals in business and real estate. They speak from my lips to your ears and they back it up with experience, knowledge and wisdom. I wouldn't put my name on it any other way.

Money-Making Skills

Through this seminar you'll learn practical money-making advice about how to be successful in business and how I invest in real estate.

Here's just a sample of what you'll learn:

- You are going to learn the Trump Way to get cash back when you BUY a property.
- Learn the Trump Way to get other people to jump-start your business.
- The Trump Way to find great deals in the hidden markets others don't know about.

Longtime Oilers sniper
'humbled by the honour'

Glenn Anderson did some of his best work in sudden death, coming through when it mattered most. So maybe it's appropriate the former Edmonton Oilers' sniper had to log a little overtime waiting for his induction into the Hockey Hall of Fame.

Anderson, one of the greatest playoff performers in NHL history, was finally elected into the Hall yesterday, eight years after he was first eligible.

"I guess I don't have to answer the question any more: 'Why aren't you in?' I'm humbled by the honour," said Anderson. "I don't know if I should be doing a commercial for Kleenex or not ... but this is very emotional."

Elected with Anderson — the induction ceremony will be Nov. 10 — is classy Russian centre Igor Larionov, who had a terrific NHL career after already being a dominant player internationally for his home country until the age of 29.

Coincidentally, the two inductees-in-waiting recently played some exhibition

Legendary NHL linesman Ray Scapinello will go into the Hall in the officials category, while longtime Western Hockey League president Ed Chynoweth, who died two months ago, was elected in the builders' category.

A Chip off the old (ice) block

Not since 1941 has a major-leaguer finished a season with a .400 batting average, but it's time now to accept the possibility that this remarkable feat might be accomplished this season.

As the schedule nears the midway point, it's clear the Atlanta Braves' Chipper Jones has a legitimate shot at .400. Entering last night, the 36-year-old all-star was batting .403. He hasn't spent a day under .400 since April 12.

And so the late, great Ted Williams must be spinning in his, er, freezer.

"I think Chipper can do it," said Hall of Famer Tony Gwynn, who was hitting .394 with the San Diego Padres in 1994, when a strike wiped out that season. "Hitting .400 is about giving yourself an opportunity every time you go up and not wasting at-bats, as Chipper does ... I think I could have hit .400 in '94 and I really think Chipper can do it this season."

Oh, and this gem from Gwynn: "I remember Ted Williams once told me 'If I knew hitting .400 would be such a big deal, I'd have done it more often.'"

Celtics claim 17th NBA championship

First league title for Boston's big 3

CELTICS 131 LAKERS 92

The Boston Celtics captured their record 17th championship, and first since the Larry Bird era 22 years ago, by trouncing the Los Angeles Lakers 131-92 in the NBA Finals Game 6 in Boston yesterday.

Playing in the shadow of 16 championship banners hanging from the rafters, Boston took control of the game in the second quarter and turned a four-point lead into a 58-35 advantage by intermission.

Forward Kevin Garnett and guard Ray Allen, off-season acquisitions by the Celtics, each had 26 points to lead Boston.

Allen hit seven of nine from three-point range after having struggled for most of the post-season.

League MVP Kobe Bryant led the Lakers with 22 points, but hit only seven of 22 shots and was largely a non-factor after the opening quarter when he had 11 points.

Accent on maximum value

Hyundai compact does not skimp on quality, fun

By MICHAEL BANOVSKY
for Metro Edmonton

Ten grand. Well, $9,995 if you want to split hairs. That's the cash price on the 2008 Hyundai Accent L three-door, a hatchback that was already a likable little compact car.

The price, incidentally, doesn't extend to the sedan version, and expectedly you get a pretty basic car for the money.

But it's 10 grand — what do you expect? The biggest and most-essential option is air conditioning, which isn't standard equipment, and rings in at $1,678.95 as a dealer-installed option. Add another $1,000 if you want the optional four-speed automatic.

If you'd like the full rundown of what to expect after slipping behind the wheel of the least expensive car in Canada (a claim shared by its similarly priced Kia Rio corporate cousin), you'll find: power steering, 14-inch steel wheels with full wheel covers, dual front airbags, seatbelt pretensioners, 60/40-split folding rear seats, multi-adjustable driver's seat, four-speaker AM/FM/CD/MP3 stereo, tinted glass, rear spoiler, and rear wiper/washer.

The Accent L's engine is a torque-rich, 1.6-litre four-cylinder rated at 110 horsepower that's a good match for the optional four-speed

Other than the attractive pricing, the Accent also looks ready to compete on quality and "fun factor."

2008 Hyundai Accent

- Type: Subcompact two-door hatchback FWD
- Engine: 1.6-litre L4 DOHC
- Price: $9,995
- HP: 110 @ 6,000 rpm
- Torque: 106 @ 4,500 rpm

Highlights:

- Only 10 stacks!
- Good value
- Good looks
- Safety equipment

automatic transmission. The standard five-speed manual works well, though the long throws between gears detracts from the sporty ride.

There's nothing out of the ordinary on the chassis or on the steering and suspension side, but it's the end product that counts and the Accent delivers a solid feel on the road. The ride is slightly firm, but the body doesn't lean much and this appealing little car takes corners very confidently.

The subcompact segment in Canada is alive with tough competitors these days. Witness the Honda Fit and Nissan's Versa, not to mention the Suzuki Swift, Chevrolet Aveo, Pontiac Wave, Toyota Yaris and Kia Rio. In this category, Hyundai sees the Yaris as its main rival and, in typical Hyundai fashion, it's taking on the Toyota with a bigger car and more stuff for the money.

If you've got very little to spend, even a well-maintained used car may be on your radar. But arranging financing, making sure the vehicle is sound, and warranty headaches can result from not doing your homework. Buying a super-inexpensive car from a dealership alleviates those concerns — plus it lets you slip into a "new" car.

Before the price reduction, the Accent could hold its own against its market rivals. Now, it looks ready to also compete on quality and in the "fun factor" sweepstakes.

Return to roots

Fit proves Honda can still build great subcompacts

By BRADLEY HORN
for Metro Edmonton

The likable four-door, five-seat Fit is Honda's entry-level product, positioned below the much-loved Civic model.

Since the Fit's 2001 debut in Japan (where it's also built), the Fit has spread to 117 countries (including Europe under the "Jazz" name), won several awards, and has already surpassed the one million sales mark.

There's a conscious effort throughout to engineer as much cargo room as possible into the Fit's compact dimensions. While the front suspension is a design similar to that in the new Civic, the rear is a torsion beam layout — chosen because it allows the cargo floor to sit 72 mm lower than with a multilink design.

Honda also moved the Fit's fuel tank from the usual space behind the rear seats to beneath the front chairs, freeing up room for the car's innovative flipping and folding seat layout.

That space saving allows the 60/40-split rear seats to do some pretty amazing acrobatics. The standard "Magic Seat," has four arrangements: Foremost is "Utility," where the rear seatbacks fold forward (and flat) without removing the headrests, almost doubling the cargo volume from 603 litres (21.3 cu-ft) to 1186 litres (41.8 cu-ft). "Tall" sees the seat cushion fold up for carrying vertical objects. "Long" puts the rear and front seat down flush for carrying objects up to 2.4 metres (8-ft.), followed by "Refresh" where the front seats recline flush with the rear cushion, creating a bed-like setup.

Also standard is an electric power-assisted rack-and-pinion steering system (from the new Civic Si), which allows for sporty handling and improved fuel economy. Also standard are ABS brakes.

Company founder Soichiro Honda once said, "You must go after the opportunities that arise in life that you are best equipped to do." With the Fit, Honda has returned to its hatchback roots, proving that even with high-end Acuras and the NSX under its belt, the automaker still knows what makes a great subcompact.

with most USB-based media players, including the incumbent (iPod) and challengers (Zune, Nomad Zen, etc.). By interface, I mean you can take direct control of the player from the car's controls. Your player will also charge through the USB port.

If you're so inclined, music can be served up with voice commands. Simply touch the button on the steering wheel, wait for the prompt, and say: "USB," then, "play," music from your device will start to play.

If your phone has Bluetooth, you can access just about any aspect of your device from Sync.

U.S. considers proposal for hotel on Alcatraz Island

The U.S. National Park Service is considering adding a hotel to Alcatraz Island, site of one of the world's most notorious prisons.

Unlike the cells afforded to inmates such as Al "Scarface" Capone, the facility would offer upscale accommodations like those now available at the Ahwahnee Hotel in California's Yosemite National Park.

"People are constantly saying they want to see more of the island," National Park Service Spokesman Rich Weideman said. "A hotel would be the ultimate experience in visitor access."

Alcatraz Island is run by the U.S. National Park Service and is already San Francisco's second most-popular tourist attraction, after its famed cable cars. About 1.5 million people take ferries to visit the prison cellblock every year, and summer tickets sell out weeks ahead.

But many visitors say they also want to see parts of the 12-acre (5-hectare) island that are closed to the public, including wildlife areas, the room where prison guards bowled and the prison theater where gangsters watched From Here To Eternity.

A hotel, likely built in a structure that once housed prison guards, would for the first time offer the general public 24-hour access to "the Rock" and capitalize on the park's popular night-time tours. That's when evening fog shrouds San Francisco from view. But island visitors, like the prisoners before them, can still hear activity emanating from the city. "It's a very eerie experience," Weideman said.

Many development ideas, including adding a casino or a new prison, have been floated since the federal penitentiary closed on Alcatraz in 1963, according to newspaper USA Today. But the island's status as a national historic landmark set within a national park has made development difficult.

The hotel is one of several proposals the park service is now weighing as part of its new general management plan, which will guide park development and renovation for the next 20 years.

Others include serving food to visitors in the prison cafeteria and adding boat tours to the island's perimeter. The park service is taking comment on the proposals and will use public remarks to create a new draft of the general plan next year, Weideman said.

Tips for staying fit on the road

THE TRAVEL JUNKIE
JULIA DIMON
www.thetraveljunkie.ca

Stripped of exercise equipment, routine — and, well, discipline — it's not always easy staying fit on the road. The life of a travel writer is random, with little opportunity to spend a night in the same hotel, let alone maintain a monthly gym membership.

For the past few years, I've struggled with how to stay in shape while traveling but as I prepare for my upcoming stint abroad, I've finally enlisted the help of a professional.

Nathan Mellalieu is founder of Studeo 55, a boutique health club in the heart of Vancouver. This former college football player tuned gym-President has worked with the likes of Anne Hathaway, Jennifer Garner and Ben Affleck, whipping them into shape with a series of specialized workouts.

Appreciating the fact that I roam around like a gypsy without the luxuries of a trainer, treadmill or weights, Nathan assures me that there are ways to stay fit while I travel. He offers the following advice:

» There are many exercises that can be done on the floor of your hotel room: Squats, lunges and push-ups, the ultimate upper body exercise.

» Running is a great way to burn fat and keep the body trim. Run hard for three minutes, rest for one. Repeat this 5-7 times.

» If you don't mind carrying a few extra items in your suitcase, buy a heart rate monitor (to workout within your desired target heart rate) and an elastic band (for resistance training). There are a variety of arm exercises that can be done with a simple, lightweight band.

» While waiting for connecting flights in the airport lounge, go for a walk instead of just sitting.

» When coming home from a long day of sight-seeing, walk up the stairs to your hotel room instead of taking the elevator.

Another Brit invasion?

London-born local lad lands in Idol's Top 24

Martin Kerr

Age: 25

From: Edmonton

By SANDY CAETANO
for Metro Edmonton

Imagine a Brit being crowned the next Canadian Idol. Hard to believe, but it could very likely happen.

Martin Kerr, 25, from Edmonton was born and raised in London, England but love brought him to this country.

While traveling about, Kerr met a young lady he couldn't live without. Three years later, Kerr is married and part of the Top 24.

"My wife is Canadian and I moved here to marry her, her name is Tara and we met while I was in China," says Kerr. "I grew up in England, my family is Scottish and Irish ... I'm a Brit. (But) I try to think of myself as a world citizen, I've been to 30 countries."

Before Idol, Kerr used to busk at local farmer's markets for change. And while the Idol audition team was in town, a woman who heard him singing suggested he try out for the show.

Kerr's taste in music includes the likes of Cat Stevens, John Denver, James Taylor and more. For his audition he sang Van Morrison's Brown Eyed Girl, Radio Head's High and Dry and Angels by Robbie Williams.

"All British songs actually, but I've been getting into the Canadian music scene ever since I got here," he says. "I would put myself in the adult alternative genre, I'm also quite influenced by the folksy singer songwriters particularly from the 70s actually."

Kerr also admires Jeff Buckley and Peter Gabriel, people who convey a huge amount of emotion when they sing. He also likes to be very emotive when he sings, and says people are not quite sure what accent he sings in.

"It tends to morph and morph around and you wouldn't tell that I was English from listening to me sing," says Kerr.

"I like to wear my heart on my sleeve and let it pour out into the audience."

Winehouse still hospitalized

Tests on singer inconclusive

Soul singer Amy Winehouse remained in a London hospital on Tuesday for more tests after fainting at home on Monday and being rushed to a clinic by her father, a spokesman said.

"She's staying there for the time being," the spokesman said.

"They are still not quite sure what happened and the tests were inconclusive."

The 24-year-old singer and songwriter, who has publicly battled drug problems and whose personal life has attracted widespread media attention, will stay at the private clinic for further tests, he added. Winehouse, who won five Grammy Awards in February and enjoyed commercial success with her album Back to Black, put her touring commitments on hold last year amid reports she had been hospitalized for severe exhaustion. She also entered a rehabilitation clinic in January. Winehouse is expected to perform as planned at a Nelson Mandela birthday concert in London's Hyde Park on June 27.

Her husband, Blake Fielder-Civil, pleaded guilty this month to beating up a bartender and conspiring to pervert the course of justice by trying to pay him not to testify.

Get Smart gadgets are not all fiction

By GLEN MILLER
for Metro Edmonton

Funny thing about those gadgets in Get Smart. The covert people who make them in the real world are paying attention.

So too was the case in 1965 when the Get Smart TV series first launched.

With all the shtick and catch-phrases the comedy TV series became famous for, the gadgets have endured in their legacy: the shoe phone, the cone of silence, the list goes on.

Truth is the real makers of gadgets and weapons do take note when some deceptive device appears on the big or small screen.

That gadget might come darn close to mirroring what exists in the real world of espionage.

The covert devices used in the Get Smart movie are not far removed from the ingenuity dreamed up four decades ago.

Anne Hathaway, who plays Agent 99 in the film, got to employ three gadgets, and loved learning how to execute them: the compact that releases a gas that exposes laser beams; exploding dental floss; and a cellphone with knockout gas inside of it.

"When the gadgets worked, it would be great, but another funny part is when they wouldn't work," Hathaway told Metro.

In fact, Hathaway says one contribution of hers to the film, well other than that acting part, was suggesting how to execute a gadget scene that had been going awry for Steve Carell (Maxwell Smart, Agent 86).

She suggested how he could better handle one of his gadgets to fix a nagging problem that was holding things up on the set.

"I was proud of that," she did you know?

» The movie's gadget-makers, Bruce (Masi Oka) and Lloyd (Nate Torrence), are stars of a companion DVD to the movie called Bruce and Lloyd Out of Control. It's a parallel storyline to Get Smart and will be released on July 1.

Anne Hathaway and Steve Carell star in the gadget-filled film Get Smart.

says.

From the TV series, scenes featuring the cone of silence contain some of the best comedy skits going, but guess what ... it existed.

Director Peter Segal says someone who worked on the movie had a relative who had a connection to the CIA and was able to confirm this fact: The cone of silence was used in the American Embassy in Moscow. A plastic cone was placed over people and music played inside so the conversation couldn't possibly be picked up by a bug.

"And as usual, they said it didn't work," said Segal, laughing. "Almost everything in the movie is based in some kind of reality and so we came up with a few of our own gadgets to go along with some of the iconic ones (from the TV series)."

Faith preps first Christmas album

MUSIC Faith Hill's first Christmas album, Joy To The World, will arrive Sept. 16, Reuters reports. The first single from the Warner Bros. release is an original track, A Baby Changes Everything, written by Tim Nichols, Craig Wiseman and K.K. Wiseman.

Among the contributors on the album are the Nashville Orchestra, London's Metro Voices and Oratory School Boys Choir and arranger David Campbell. Members of Hill's fan club enjoyed an exclusive preview of the material during a June 6 Nashville playback.

New Metallica disc in September

MUSIC Metallica's new album will be titled Death Magnetic and is expected in September, Reuters reports.

The news was revealed over the weekend via the band's website.

No new material has been played live at the band's handful of recent shows, but British journalists have heard rough mixes of six untitled songs, several of which cross the seven-minute mark.

Death Magnetic was produced by Rick Rubin and is the follow-up to 2003's St. Anger.

The Game moves release date again

MUSIC The release date for the Game's third album, LAX, has been moved yet again.

Originally due June 24 and then shifted to July 8, the set is now scheduled to hit shelves July 22. The first single from the Geffen release, Game's Pain, featuring Keyshia Cole, is No. 26 on the Hot R&B/Hip-Hop Songs chart.

Fall's big shows leaked

LEAKED: Somebody at my favorite TV blog, TVtattle.com, must have let their curiosity do the (net-) surfing for them, because they discovered that at least two of this fall's big new shows have already been leaked to online file-sharing networks, months in advance of their premieres. J. J. Abrams new *X-Files*esque Fringe is out there, as is True Blood, Alan "Six Feet Under" Ball's new vampire show for HBO.

The TVtattle blogger found them on a site called Insomniac Times, whose proprietor posts about alternate energy tech and other geeky stuff along with the odd leaked file making its way out there onto Pirate Bay and other sites. A quick search on

INTELLEVISION
RICK MCGINNIS
rick.mcginis@metronews.ca

btjunkie.org revealed that both shows have already been disseminated pretty widely, with hundreds of "seeders" for True Blood alone.

Now, I realize that I'm being a naughty boy by even talking about this stuff, but the fact is that screeners get leaked all the time, and if you're really hot to see a show, either a few weeks or months after it's aired, or just as long in advance, chances are you'll probably be able to find it out there in the Internet's capacious grey zones. The media is usually blamed, but by the time newspapers and magazines have been serviced with sneak previews of new shows, they've usually already made their appearance online, put out there by someone a bit higher in the screener food chain at the studios or their production and duplication houses.

Having finished product available long before it's supposed to be broadcast — even if it's theoretically meant for a select audience — is the real problem, since simple laws of supply and demand, not to mention human nature, means that leaks will happen, no matter how much security is put in place. Lawsuits won't work either, Hollywood homies — just ask your depressed buddies in the music business.

What's required at this point is a whole new way of looking at production and programming — a change that's basically revolutionary, if you're a network executive working with a business model that hasn't changed since Burns And Allen was a radio show. Forget broadcasting, fall debates, even seasons; with a pilot in hand, the networks — or any producer with access to a distribution network online — can make a show available, and gauge audience response accordingly, and at a fraction of the cost of producing episodes in advance of demand.

Every fall, shows fall by the wayside after just a handful of episodes, with even more in the can, while networks scramble for replacements for the now-vacant time slot, to the consternation of advertisers. Every year, this system looks more and more precarious, and the sense of dissatisfaction and anxiety increases, while the audiences have already begun consuming programming the way they want — at their leisure. The future, at least for TV, is now — somebody just has to tell the networks.

Rick McGinnis writes about music, movies, books and television, but not opera.

Family Guy

He has a lot of voice credits under his belt, but this time James Woods gets to play himself. As any fan of the series knows, the local high school is named after the actor, so when Brian — in a bid to impress his black girlfriend — suggests the school change its name to Martin Luther King Jr. High, Peter brings Woods in to stop him. This creates a rift between dog and owner, and Woods becomes Peter's new best friend — and his psycho stalker. 6:30 PM on TROP

CSI: NY

This may be the weirdest crime scene yet. The investigators find human blood on the Statue of Liberty — on the crown, no less. Apparently it's the work of a vigilante killer with a well-known musician in his sights. Gary Sinise, Melina Kanakaredes, Carmine Giovinazzo, Hill Harper and Ed-die Cahill star in "Can You Hear Me Now?" 8 PM on CFRN

Hathaway singing for love

Actress Anne Hathaway really did give her boyfriend the gift of song – by recording an album of his favourite tracks just for him, imdb.com reports.

The Devil Wears Prada star is dating Italian businessman Raffaello Follieri and for his last birthday, she decided to give him an extra special present, booking a recording studio and laying down her own versions of all his favourite love songs. But Hathaway, 25, insists she has no aspirations to be a pop star – and the LP is for Follieri's ears only. She says, "On his birthday, I went to a recording studio and recorded a CD. I sang all the songs he loves."

"I've done things for him I never thought I could do for anyone."

Blige's big heart

Mary J. Blige has a heart the size of her record sales, PageSix.com reports.

Last week, Blige was at the Diane von Furstenberg store in New York City when she overheard a girl having a problem at the register. A spy said, "The girl had a dress on hold that she loved, and the bill was $900. She thought it was only $500, and she couldn't afford it."

Blige told the saleswoman, "Go get the girl. I want to pay for the balance on the dress." The customer at first declined Blige's offer but relented after the singer said, "I know what it's like to want something and not be able to have it. I insist."

The customer wanted to send her a cheque for the balance, but Blige said, "Just enjoy it. I'm blessed, so let me do this."

Larter loves her 'juicy' butt

The 32-year-old Ali Larter reveals she once had to have her thighs duct-taped before a photo shoot because "they were a little too round," usmagazine.com reports.

Larter also recalled, in an interview with Allure, another instance when she was shooting a movie on location and the filmmakers noticed she had put on a few pounds. "The faxes went out from the producers and the director to my agents to my manager to call me and ask me to lose weight," Larter says. "I just remember sitting in my trailer hysterically crying from the embarrassment I felt about myself, my body – and that no one could talk to me directly."

Now Larter has found the perfect balance. "When I'm in really good shape, I like my butt. It's juicy," Metro News Services

Quiet life fine for Liv

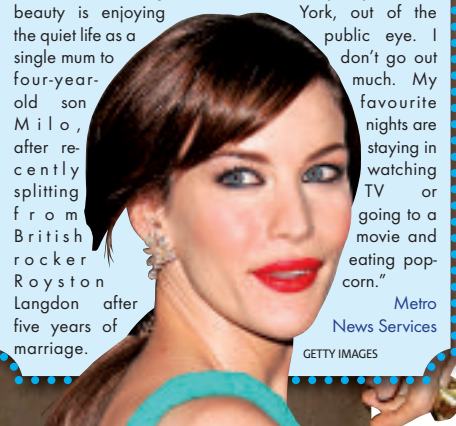

Actress Liv Tyler is happy to shun the celebrity party lifestyle in favour of spending her nights in front of the TV, imdb.com reports.

The Armageddon beauty is enjoying the quiet life as a single mum to four-year-old son Milo, after recently splitting from British rocker Royston Langdon after five years of marriage.

She tells Britain's Cosmopolitan magazine, "I don't have any urge to run naked along a beach or get drunk at a party."

"I live quietly in New York, out of the public eye. I don't go out much. My favourite nights are staying in watching TV or going to a movie and eating popcorn."

The digits 1 through 9 will appear exactly once in each row, each column, and each zone. (A zone is an outlined 3x3 grid within the larger puzzle grid. There are nine of these zones in the puzzle.) Do not enter a digit into a box if it already appears elsewhere in the same 3x3 zone, or in the same row across the puzzle, or column down the puzzle.
